About Silver Works

Silver Works runs jewellery making workshops in Dublin city centre, ideal for those who are looking for an experience which is just a little bit different, whilst also being very “Irish”.

We have two locations one on Drury street above our jewellery shop which showcases the work of over 30 Irish designers and on George’s street, there are 6 dedicated studios, seating up to 60 people at one time.

Silver Works is well known in Dublin as the place to go for unusual, hands on and fun activities. Earning over 7000 5 star reviews across Google, AirBnB Experiences and Trip Advisor. Silver Works has grown in popularity during the last 8 years in business. Ensuring every single customer has the very best of experience, from the moment they walk through the door.

Our teachers are at the heart of our success, each one not only being a fount of knowledge for everything jewellery related, but also of everything Irish! Full of personality, they are very capable hosts and happy to entertain the guests whilst imparting their knowledge.

Used to working with different groups, from tourists to team building, we are very happy to be flexible with dates, so that we can accommodate your group. Having a large number of teachers to call on, we only need a couple of weeks' notice to set up a special workshop for you. Also, if required to host smaller groups (under 6 people) we can also add them onto our current time table of public workshops.

From our beginnings in 2018, with AirBnB Experiences, we have now expanded to add dedicated workshops aimed specifically at visitors. Please see below an outline of our 2 hour workshops.
